Central American law firm BLP announced that Adriana Castro and Anneth Jiménez have become partners.

Castro joined BLP as a legal assistant in 2003 and became an associate in 2007 after graduating Summa Cum Laude from Universidad de Costa Rica. She has over 14 years of experience in M&A transactions.

Jiménez joined the firm 2006 as an associate in the business law and real estate and hospitality practice groups. She graduated Summa Cum Laude graduation from Universidad Escuela Libre de Derecho in Costa Rica and has over 15 years of experience in grand scale real estate projects.

With these promotions, BLP is now home 29 partners across its offices in the five Central American countries. Notably, over a quarter of the partners are women.
