Bolivian law firm Bufete Aguirre announced the opening of its office in Santa Cruz de la Sierra, the country's most populous city and key business metropolitan area.

The move is said to be part of the law firm's strategic expansion and is considered a natural response to demand from key clients with presence or investments in Santa Cruz.

The main office of the firm remains in the country's capital La Paz, where most administrative and public offices are located. Partner Carolina Aguirre has relocated from La Paz to Santa Cruz to manage the new office.
