M&A

Based on data collected and aggregated from more than 40 law firms active in the Corporate M&A sector, the market remains one of the most significant drivers of legal revenues, accounting for nearly half (47.16%) of total firm turnover.

By Vincenzo Rozzo

Despite a period characterized by economic uncertainty, changing financing conditions, and evolving regulatory frameworks, Corporate M&A revenues recorded a positive year-on-year growth of 0.9%, confirming the sector's ability to maintain a stable level of activity and demand.

The market is supported by a substantial pool of specialized professionals. The surveyed firms employ 1,637 lawyers and professionals dedicated to Corporate M&A-related activities, highlighting the scale and sophistication of the practice area in Italy. Gender diversity remains an important topic for the profession. Women represent 39.03% of all professionals working in the sector, demonstrating meaningful participation across Corporate M&A teams. However, representation decreases significantly at partnership level, where women account for only 18.56% of partners. These figures reflect the progress achieved in recent years while also underscoring the continuing challenge of improving gender balance within leadership positions.

From a client perspective, the Italian Corporate M&A market is predominantly driven by medium-sized enterprises, which generate 47.29% of total corporate revenues. Small enterprises contribute 27.88%, while large corporations account for 24.82%. This distribution confirms the central role of Italy's mid-market economy, where entrepreneurial businesses, family-owned companies, and growth-oriented enterprises continue to seek legal support for acquisitions, strategic partnerships, reorganizations, and investment transactions.

The composition of revenues by practice area illustrates the breadth of services offered by Corporate M&A teams. High-end M&A transactions represent the largest segment, generating 20.76% of corporate revenues, closely followed by M&A Mid-Market activities at 19.45% and Private Equity at 16.69%. Advisory work contributes 13.09%, while Corporate Restructuring accounts for 9.39%. Additional areas, including Tax M&A, Venture Capital, Family Business transactions, Compliance, and White-Collar Crime-related corporate matters, further demonstrate the increasingly multidisciplinary nature of modern corporate practices. The limited contribution of Equity Capital Markets and Antitrust work suggests that traditional transactional and advisory mandates remain the principal drivers of revenue generation.

Sector specialization also provides valuable insight into current market dynamics. The Chemical & Pharmaceutical industry emerges as the most significant contributor to Corporate M&A revenues, accounting for 19.75% of the total, reflecting continued investment activity, consolidation trends, and innovation-led growth. Financial Institutions (11.65%) and Food & Beverage (11.14%) represent other major sources of work, while Fashion, Design & Luxury (9.18%), Media & Telecommunications (6.75%), and Insurance (5.92%) continue to generate substantial transactional activity. The large share represented by other industries (35.60%) highlights the diversified nature of the Italian economy and the broad sectoral reach of Corporate M&A practices.

Overall, the data portray a mature and diversified legal market characterized by stable revenue growth, strong dependence on the mid-market segment, and a significant concentration of activity in M&A and private equity transactions. At the same time, the findings reveal evolving challenges and opportunities, particularly in relation to talent development, gender equality, and the increasing specialization required to support clients operating in complex and highly competitive industries. As corporate transactions continue to adapt to changing economic conditions and strategic business priorities, Corporate M&A remains a cornerstone of the Italian legal market and a key indicator of broader economic activity and investment trends.

RESEARCH PERIOD 2025

This report is the second publication from the Research Center of LC Publishing Group, which focuses on the Corporate M&A practice in the Italian market. The methodology involves analysing three macro-elements, which researchers have used to compile this report:
