This year, Machado Meyer completed 50 years. Over the years, the firm has accompanied the evolution of the market, adapting to the changes and social transformations and overcoming the challenges by which, according to Managing Partner Tito Andrade (pictured), the firm is attracted.

Composed of a balanced team of professionals, Machado Meyer is young, has specialized and skilled lawyers, and also offers a career plan, with several initiatives, such as the program "The Next Generation", which helps students in their development through the exchange of experiences, both in life and professionally.

It is this mix of skills and competencies that makes Machado Meyer a differentiated firm in the market. To learn more about the history and importance of Machado Meyer within the legal market, The Latin American Lawyer interviewed Tito Andrade, managing partner of the firm, who spoke a little about the goals and prospects for the coming years and the future of the profession. Learn a bit more in the interview below.
